Resilience in the face of adversity (面對逆境的應變能力)

There are different impacts to the business due to the COVID-19 pandemic; some are busier and some are quieter. Human resources practitioners have been facing this unexpected challenge over a year.

As vaccination to be commenced, it is about time to plan for frontline staff to be brought up to full speed. How to assist frontline staff in addressing their operational problems in the post-pandemic period? Can the 'Design Thinking' philosophy provide a way to release their worries and stress?

Certainly, this simple topic cannot be taken lightly and appropriate application should be understood on ground. There are work experiences, in particular for logistics industry, to be shared among HR practitioners via a Webinar organized by HKLA.
